CHINESE REVOLTERS NAME PEACE TERMS

PEKING, June 14.—A despatch sent from Chengtu, the capital of Szechuen province, by the correspondent of a news agency, states that Tsai Ao, the revolutionary leader, and Chen Yi, the military governor of Szechuen, who is carrying on negotiations on behalf of the Peking government, have agreed to the following nine conditions of peace:

1. To permit Yuan Shi-kai to remain in office.
2. The reestablishment of parliament within two months.
3. To revert to the regulations governing the administration during the first year of the republic.
4. To allow the present independent officials to remain in office.
5. To pardon all political offenders.
6. To station a number of southern troops in Peking.
7. To recall a number of northern troops to Peking.
8. To send General Tuan Chi-jui to Wuchang as military governor.
9. To keep General Feng Kuo-chang at Nanking.

The revolutionary press asserts that Tsai Ao has never agreed to any peace conditions which included the retention of Yuan Shi-kai as president.

This has been credited by the Peking government, which has had advisers indicating satisfactory progress in the negotiations between Chen Yi and Tsai Ao.

MARY PICKFORD NIGHT.

As "The Foundling" one of the most sweetly pathetic characters she has ever impersonated on the screen, the incomparable Mary Pickford surpasses herself. It will be shown at the Royal today. The foundling is the daughter of a struggling artist, at whose birth her mother dies. Because of his wonderful love for his wife, the artist hates the child that caused her death, and gives the baby girl to a mothering heart who cares for it. The tragedy of his wife's death brings to the artist the master-touch he has so long sought, and in the years that follow, he wins fame and fortune. But in the sunset of life, he realizes its emptiness and utility, and yearns for the return of the child he had driven from his heart. She, in the meantime, has drifted through a strange and varying life. How the thread of destiny unite these parted souls, bringing to each its first genuine happiness, is absorbingly unfolded in this unique photoplay.

THE CONQUEROR.

Millions of people, young and old, scattered all over the country read about the doings of the "Four Hundred" of New York. They see the pictures of masters of finance, leaders of society and debutantes. They devour avidly accounts of their doings at their city and country homes. In "The Conqueror", which appears at the Orpheum tonight, the new Ince-Triangle play, all this society thing is developed realistically and it answers numberless questions that the curious multitude are always asking. How do the elite of society dress and eat? How do they greet each other? How do they walk, sit down or dance? See the "Conqueror". That's the answer.

Willard Mack, the strong dramatic star of successful Broadway productions, is cast in this play as Mark Horn, "The Wolf of Wall Street." Reared in the slums, even as a child Mack was of an independent nature. The boy doesn't want his poor mother to accept the patronizing gifts of food from charitable women of wealth. He becomes a laborer on the streets. The sight of the well to do riding luxuriously by in their limousines, while he is sweating with his shovel at hard labor arouses bitterness in his heart. He rises till he becomes a power in finance. He begins to avenge himself on society.
